

XML Validation Reflection

In this activity, I learned how to create a simple XML document using the correct structure and syntax. I also learned that XML must have one root element and properly matched opening and closing tags. Validating the XML helped me check if my document was correctly written and free from syntax errors. Overall, the activity helped me understand how XML can organize and share data in a structured way.